African Voices of the Atlantic Slave Trade Anne Bailey,2005-01-02 It s an awful story It s an awful story Why do you want to bring this up now Chief Awusa of Atorkor For centuries the story of the Atlantic slave trade has been filtered through the eyes and records of white Europeans In this watershed book historian Anne C Bailey focuses on memories of the trade from the African perspective African chiefs and other elders in an area of southeastern Ghana once famously called the Old Slave Coast share stories that reveal that Africans were traders as well as victims of the trade Bailey argues that like victims of trauma many African societies now experience a fragmented view of their past that partially explains the blanket of silence and shame around the slave trade Capturing scores of oral histories that were handed down through generations Bailey finds that although Africans were not equal partners with Europeans even their partial involvement in the slave trade had devastating consequences on their history and identity In this unprecedented and revelatory book Bailey explores the delicate and fragmented nature of historical memory

The Commodity Culture of Victorian England Thomas Richards,1990 This provocative and theoretically sophisticated book reveals how capitalism produced and sustained a culture of its own in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Richards provides a valuable account of the interaction between cultural and business development in Victorian England by focusing on the evolution of advertising Through an examination of five case studies ranging from how advertisers employed images of the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851 to their use of images of women just before WWI he argues that the British developed a new type of culture in the mid and late 19th century a new way of thinking and living increasingly based upon the possession of material goods commodities Revising the findings of some earlier scholars Richards shows that cultural forms of consumerism came into being well before the consumer economy did The 50 well reproduced advertising images greatly enhance the value of this study M Blackford Choice

Consumerism in World History Peter N. Stearns,2001 The desire to acquire luxury goods and leisure services is a basic force in modern life This work explores both the historical origins and world wide appeal of this relatively modern phenomenon
