The Law Of Defamation And The Internet

The Law of Defamation and the Internet Matthew Collins, 2001 The Internet is the first truly global communications medium Anyone with a computer and an Internet connection can publish material to a potentially vast audience located in any number of countries around the world The Internet is at the same time a great bastion of free speech and a medium of almost limitless international defamation This title contains the first comprehensive analysis of the application of Anglo Australian rules of civil defamation law to material published via the Internet As well as addressing the common law rules as they apply in the United Kingdom and Australia it covers the operation of statutory modifications of the common law in each jurisdiction the specific defences applying to Internet intermediaries the European Union's Electronic Commerce Directive and comparative case law from the United States It also contains a substantial treatment of the relevant principles of jurisdiction and choice of law The work contains a clear and non technical explanation of how the Internet works and the various ways in which it is used to publish material Common Internet terms are defined in a glossary Relevant legislation has been extracted and reproduced As this is a field in which there are as yet few authorities and a large number of untested issues the author's systematic approach towards the cause of action defences and remedies coupled with the frequent use of contextual examples means this work will maintain its relevance in this fast moving area of the law The title will be an invaluable reference for practitioners Internet professionals and students alike

Media Law and Policy in the Internet Age Doreen Weisenhaus, Simon N M Young, 2017-02-23 The Internet brings opportunity and peril for media freedom and freedom of expression It enables new forms of publication and extends the reach of traditional publishers but its power increases the potential damage of harmful speech and invites state regulation and censorship as well as manipulation by private and commercial interests In jurisdictions around the world courts lawmakers and regulators grapple with these contradictions and challenges in different ways with different goals in mind The media law reforms they are adopting or considering contain crucial lessons for those forming their own responses or who seek to understand how technology is driving such rapid change in how information and opinion are distributed or restricted In this book many of the world's leading authorities examine the emerging landscape of reform in nations with variable political and legal contexts They analyse developments particularly through the prisms of defamation and media regulation but also explore the impact of technology on privacy law and national security Whether as jurists lawmakers legal practitioners or scholars they are at the front lines of a story of epic change in how and why the Internet is changing the nature and raising the stakes of 21st century communication and expression

The Law's Response to Defamation on the Web Leslie Chew, 2001

Defamation Law in the Age of the Internet, 2017 In a great many cases however the reputational harm derived not from the posting of a false statement but from the posting of either a true statement or a non consensual disclosure where the truth of the contents of the disclosure was not in dispute e.g. The internet in particular could re open a variety of issues of relevance to defamation law and to the social value of the protection of reputation because it offers a widespread opportunity for all of those with a connection to distribute their messages often with an added sense of anonymity For example all of our participants recognized Instagram as a place to build a reputation as artsy and to post things about your life and food and tips and hacks Ashley to show you are living an outgoing happy and fruitful life Caitlyn Facebook was seen as a place to appear to be social family oriented accomplished and someone who travels and LinkedIn was a place to be pro They don't actually get to see yourself someone like that like sees me in person would obviously know like the more like traits about me people do like that like know you in real life there's just going to know like the full side of you So like there's these like almost like these two the person you're trying to portray on social media versus like the person you kind of are For example in the realm of like dating and all like people like always look at how many followers you have and like what's your ratio you know how many people ah you follow compared to following you That's like a big thing Like if I see like a girl with like 2 000 followers and like she's only following 1 000 I'm going to like be intrigued and like look more right
