Strategic Selection Christine L. Nemacheck, 2007 The process by which presidents decide whom to nominate to fill Supreme Court vacancies is obviously of far ranging importance particularly because the vast majority of nominees are eventually confirmed But why is one individual selected from among a pool of presumably qualified candidates In Strategic Selection Presidential Nomination of Supreme Court Justices from Herbert Hoover through George W Bush Christine Nemacheck makes heavy use of presidential papers to reconstruct the politics of nominee selection from Herbert Hoover s appointment of Charles Evan Hughes in 1930 through President George W Bush s nomination of Samuel Alito in 2005 Bringing to light firsthand evidence of selection politics and of the influence of political actors such as members of Congress and presidential advisors from the initial stages of formulating a short list through the president s final selection of a nominee Nemacheck constructs a theoretical framework that allows her to assess the factors impacting a president s selection process Much work on Supreme Court nominations focuses on struggles over confirmation or is heavily based on anecdotal material and posits the idiosyncratic nature of the selection process in contrast Strategic Selection points to systematic patterns in judicial selection Nemacheck argues that although presidents try to maximize their ideological preferences and minimize uncertainty about nominees conduct once they are confirmed institutional factors that change over time such as divided government and the institutionalism of the presidency shape and constrain their choices By revealing the pattern of strategic action which she argues is visible from the earliest stages of the selection process Nemacheck takes us a long way toward understanding this critically important part of our political system

Hua John Haiman, 1980-01-01 There is no country in the world where as many different languages are spoken as in New Guinea approximately a fifth of the languages in the world Most of these so called Papuan languages seem to be unrelated to languages spoken elsewhere The present work is the first truly comprehensive study of such a language Hua The chief typological peculiarity of Hua is the existence of a medial verb construction used to conjoin clauses in compound and complex sentences Hua also shows a fundamental morphological distinction between coordinate and subordinate medial clauses the latter are not tense iconic the events they describe are not necessarily prior to the event described in later clauses Moreover their truth is always presupposed The distribution and behaviour of a post nominal suffix mo provides insights into the nature of topics conditional clauses and functional definitions of the parts of speech In phonology the central rules of assimilation are constrained by the universal hierarchy of sonority which may however be derived from binary features These are some of the areas in which the grammar of Hua is unusually perspicuous The present work aims at a standard of completeness such that it would be a useful reference work for research in almost any theoretical topic
